RIVERS OF KETCHUP!

THE SARSONISTS HAD DONE IT AGAIN!

Monday comes, tapping on a windowsill
In Stamford Hill: 'Harryboy wake up'
So I rise, watch condensation trickle down
My window as buses trundle by

London Borough of Hackney
Fountayne
Road N16

And all I ever need,
I find amongst the books inside my room
And yet still I dream
I'll disappear one winter afternoon

Now I see ghosts on every corner
They comfort me if I don't look too long
All their names linger in my memory
Like melodies that won't be sung again

And all life is here
I see it from my window so I know
And the chestnut trees
Still blossom in the spring on fountayne road

how to play

shove hapenny

Player one takes the coin and places it at the edge of his/her end of the table. Half the coin should be hanging over the edge of the table. Player one shoves the coin down the table using the heel of his/her hand. Following the initial blow, player one is permitted four further flicks of the coin to get the coin to reach the other end of the table, with some of the coin hanging off the tables edge. If they are successful in doing this, player one attempts to flick the coin up from the table and catch it. if they are successful, player one gets a point. Player two repeats.
